THE 1ST ANNOUNCEMENT

The 1st International Conference of Agricultural Science

*"Development of sustainable agriculture
under the impact of climate change:
Challenges and Opportunities"*

The 1st Announcement

<http://caab.edu.vn/>

August 17-19, 2018, Can Tho, Vietnam

Climate change has made the issues related to food security and environmental pollution more and more serious. This raises the need for Vietnam's agriculture and the world to develop for adaptation. Knowledge about development of the sustainable agriculture under the impact of climate change is essential for development of modern agriculture.

The 1st International Conference of Agricultural Science (formerly The Conference of Agricultural Science - CAAB) is held every two years to share and disseminate the research results about agriculture in Vietnam and around the world, and propose the future research direction. This is a prestigious scientific forum for researchers, government, agribusinesses, research institutes as well as students and lecturers from domestic and foreign universities to present, exchange and discuss the research results of agricultural and environmental sciences. At the same time, the conference also exhibits and introduces new products, services, scientific ideas, development models and new technologies in agriculture from agribusinesses, research institutes and universities.

The organizing committee cordially invite scientists, administrators, students and lecturers to study in the field of agriculture and the environment to attend the conference.
